Frank Mungo My educational background is unique. I am both a lawyer and a scientist. My formal training in both science and law gives me a distinct advantage in defending criminal and DUI cases in Ohio and Kentucky, and federal courts. That is, my knowledge of physics and engineering, combined with my skills as a criminal defense attorney, allows me to use the power of science to strengthen your defense. I can recognize and determine if the tests conducted in your case are scientifically valid or are lacking. I also know how to use science to your advantage by taking the offensive and putting the government on the defensive. The government often never tests collected evidence in criminal cases. I have access to some of the best forensic labs if evidence needs to be tested.

He brings his long and successful record and his reputation as a trial attorney to the table in helping individuals and corporations seek the results they deserve. In founding Patituce & Associates, LLC, Mr. Patituce shares in the vision that every individual, company, municipality, and corporation needs a voice in the legal process. A voice in the legal process is important because without it an untrained individual can be quickly lost in the vast array of rules, procedures, and technicalities of the law. In defending clients from DUI/OVI charges Mr. Patituce brings the high level of expertise you would expect out of an attorney that devotes almost half his time to defending DUI cases. Mr. Patituce, while doing DUI defense, has had entire cases dismissed by the judge and entire cases thrown out by juries. He uses the government's own standards against them to show how unreliable their testing is, and typically when a judge and jury learn how unreliable the testing is – the case works out in the client's favor. Mr. Patituce works hard to ensure that the best possible result for any individual in any environment. Mr. Patituce believes that every client is different and every client has different needs specific to them. Dan graduated, June of 2006, from the Moritz College of Law at Ohio State, where he focused on Criminal Law and Sentencing. Dan earned the CALI award for excellence in an advanced sentencing seminar. His work, provided to Ohio Sentencing Commission, predicted the inevitable impact of the Blakley and Booker decisions on Ohio law a year before State v. Foster was decided. Since June of 2006 Dan has been working under the tutelage of veteran Public Defender, distinguished OACDL member, Rob Beck who has been a great mentor and has encouraged Dan to work hard and stand up for his clients. Exemplifying his devotion to his clients' interests, Dan felt compelled to file a motion to disqualify the entire City Attorney's office from prosecuting an OVI where client legitimately felt there was a conflict – that case is now in the Court of Appeals. Similarly, Dan took the initiative to get the original "Shindler Motion" in order to directly challenge prosecutors' attempts to use Westerville v. Sagraves to "strike" his suppression motions and deny his clients a hearing. Using the "Shindler Motion" he was able to convince the Judge who had originally presided over Sagraves that his motions met the Shindler requirements. Over the past 15 months, Dan has tried 15 jailable criminal and traffic offenses, and has additionally conducted 7 motion hearings. Of those 15 trials, 14 of them resulted in an acquittal of at least one charge.

John Thurston Kansas lawyer John Thurston has extensive training and experience on both sides of a DUI case. He is one of the few defense attorneys in Northeast Kansas who has received actual law enforcement training in Standardized Field Sobriety Testing and DUI investigation. Twice he has completed the 40-hour DUI training given to every law enforcement officer in Kansas. He is also one of the few attorneys in Kansas to have been trained as an actual instructor in this course. John has also undergone the government's Drug Recognition Expert training, the coursework designed to determine if a driver is under the influence of drugs, rather than alcohol. John is one of only three attorneys in the entire state who has completed the American Chemical Society's Forensic Chromatography: Theory and Practice course. This intensive and rigorous course focuses on the theories behind blood alcohol testing. In addition to the classroom work, a large portion of the course takes place in a chromatography lab preparing and analyzing samples in the same manner as a crime lab. He is one of the few lawyers in the country who has earned the American Chemical Society's Forensic Drug and Alcohol Lawyer Certificate. John began honing his courtroom skills early on as a member of his law school's varsity mock trial team, successfully competing against other schools around the country at multiple tournaments. Since that time he has conducted countless jury trials, bench trials, and motion hearings, obtaining successful verdicts and rulings on a regular basis. After prosecuting DUIs and other crimes for a number of years, John began defending the criminally accused and now limits his practice to criminal defense. He believes that the traditional model of the lawyer who could write your will, handle your divorce, sue over your car accident, and defend your criminal case is outdated. That is a recipe for being proficient at many tasks, but master of none. John recognizes that it is not enough to excel in the courtroom if one is to be a successful DUI attorney. He is regularly training around the country to further develop and maintain his skills in cutting-edge DUI defense. He also teaches other attorneys DUI defense techniques and is sought out to lecture on DUI and other criminal defense topics to professional and other organizations. He has taught other attorneys at seminars in Kansas, Ohio, Florida, and New Jersey, just to name a few. John is regularly quoted in local newspapers on the topic of criminal defense. He has been hired to consult on DUI cases out-of-state. He has handled thousands of DUI cases, from first offenses for people with no criminal records, to those with multiple prior convictions, to those charged with DUI and vehicular manslaughter. John is licensed in both Kansas and Texas, and is a member of the Kansas Bar Association, the State Bar of Texas, Kansas Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, NORML Legal Committee, and the American Chemical Society. He is a member of the permanent faculty of Trial Skills University. John is a Charter Member of the DUI Defense Lawyers Association. He currently serves as that organization's Vice President.
